on 7 October 1953, during the communist celebrations in Moscow, a flight of six EF 140 (sic) aircraft (with swept forward wings) was seen over Podberezye. 25X1

2. The EF 150 made approximately 20 flights with Russian pilots during the year 1952-1953. On the twentieth or twenty-first flight, the aircraft was badly damaged on landing. It was intended to repair the aircraft again, but this decision was later abandoned. From general conversation, it is believed that the EF 150 is already in series production.
